DAIRY LEGISLATION IN PENNSYLVANIA IS PROTECTIVE

The ice cream law prohibits the use of coconut fat and other fats and oils in the manufacture of ice cream. It also prohibits the use of paraffin in chocolate coated ice cream and bars the use of other substitutes injurious to health. It provides generally for the sanitary manufacture of this article of food protecting the health of the public and provides a fine of not less than $25 or more than $100 or from 30 to 60 days in jail or both for violation.

The House Filled Milk law makes it unlawful to manufacture, sell or exchange any milk cream or milk milk to which has been added blenders or compounded any fats or oils other than milk fats, no matter whether these products are offered under the name of the articles specified or any derivative or any fictitious or trade name. It puts the ban on all filled milks. The law gave the trade 90 days in which to clean these products off the market and the time limit expired June 15. This bill is in harmony with the National Filled Milk law which required the united efforts of the dairy organizations to pass the national law coupled with that of the state means that the fight to prevent the selling of filled milk is won, and fats and oils other than milk fats will have to sell on their own merits.

A companion measure to the filled milk act, the skim milk bill was passed and approved. It defines condensed, evaporated concentrated skimmed milk and requires that it shall contain at least 20 per cent of fat, and sugar is added at least 28 per cent of total solids. It requires that it be sold in cans the net weight of contents to be not less than five pounds and he cans properly labeled as "Concentrated Skim Milk Unsweetened or Sweetened or as the case may be, and also the words 'Unit for Infants'.

The milk and cream act relates to filled milk and provides for the protection of public health and the prevention of fraud and deception by regulating the sale of milk, skimmed milk and cream and provides penalties for the violation of the act and provides for the enforcement. Periodical Milk Reports Act requires purchasers or receivers of milk or cream to furnish the producer with certain periodical milk reports stating the amount of daily deliveries and the average per centum butter fat tests.

CONTROL OF COAL CAN BE ASSUMED WITHOUT NEW LAW

Is Belief of Members of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

LAW TINKERING FEARED

That the Interstate Commerce Commission may assume full control of the coal industry of the country without an additional line of legislation except that providing for an adequate appropriation, is the view held by leading members of the late United States Coal Commission. It is pointed out in that connection that the Interstate Commerce Commission has proceeded far on that road in several cases up for rehearing before that body says the Washington correspondent of the Coal Trade Journal.

In his vigorous dissenting opinion in assigned cases, Commissioner Potter, who came to the Interstate Commerce Commission from one of the southern coal lines, insisted that the federal railroad regulating board had power to assist in stabilization and, incidentally, price regulation as the act to regulate commerce now stands.

In the Virginia Railway case application to extend a branch 10 miles to serve new mines to be opened up was denied on the ground that existing coal supply was inadequate and that the opening of new mines would further dilute this supply.

In the Ohio-Michigan cases Commissioner Potter expressed the view that the "concentration of mining labor so as to permit continuous operation, provide steady employment, and a basis for labor, producer and consumer would accomplish an available market surplus of coal and reduce mining costs and coal prices."

The decisions in these cases indicate that some members of the commission at least feel that they can exercise a guiding influence in the coal trade without the necessity of specific enabling legislation.

When the United States Coal Commission made its final recommendations, suggesting the creation of a coal division within the Interstate Commerce Commission, it was the general assumption in Washington and elsewhere that Congress should enact an amendment to the Interstate Commerce act which would extend the powers of the existing commission to include the regulation of coal. President Coolidge was expected to become the champion of such legislation and to include a recommendation in his behalf in his first message to Congress.

In many official quarters it is now argued that such legislation is not only unnecessary, but that it would be unwise in that it would open the door wide for all manner of amendments to the Interstate Commerce law, amendments which would precipitate a long and desperate contest with the radical elements in both the House and Senate. The easier and simpler way to carry the coal commission's proposal into effect, it is contended is by conferring within the Interstate Commerce Commission that body it is added may on its own motion transfer a coal division, which by the exercise of such power as the commission now has over coal transportation could effectively dominate the industry at large.

Then at some future time Congress might be called upon to authorize the commission to take over such other coal activities as the government may be engaged in, ordering the Geological Survey the coal division of the Department of Commerce and the Federal Trade Commission for example, to turn over their coal records to the new controller of the coal trade. To an extent much of this might even be done it is declared by executive order.

Consideration of this course by those interested seeking government supervision of the coal industry is prompted by the fear of what might happen if the administration should carry the federal fact-finding agency's recommendation to Congress for action by that body. These interests are convinced that once a move is made by the party in power to change the Interstate Commerce act a demand will go up from many quarters for many and radical changes in other directions. Railroad men, business men, bankers and many others are afraid to lay any transportation question before a Congress the political complexion of which is very much in doubt. They do not know whether the Republicans will be able to dictate the policies of the next Congress without serious compromises with the radicals.

They do know that there is a demand from many quarters that the Transportation Act of 1920 be amended in important particulars. There are interests bent upon repealing the sections of the law creating the Railroad Labor Board for example. There are others who want lower freight rates and are willing if given the opportunity to force these rates down by Congressional mandate. There are other interests which insist upon compulsory consolidation of the railroads into regional systems.

Many conservatives among the Republican leaders want to steer away from these issues. They do not feel that the time is ripe for a complete overhauling of the railroad situation but they seem to believe that if there is legislation touching the control of coal by the Interstate Commerce Commission, this legislation will be expanded before it is passed to embrace many other matters of greater moment. Then, too, there are interests which fear that if coal legislation of any sort is proposed by the President, Congress might be stampeded into fixing prices a business which they are not prepared to go through with at the present time. President Coolidge, it seems, has not indicated whether he will go to Congress with a definite recommendation in support of the Coal Commission report or whether he will approve action by the Interstate Commerce Commission on which would make action by Congress in the immediate future unnecessary.

ed and empty cars—than ever before on any one day in history according to reports just filed by the carriers with the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association. Fifty-two Class 1 railroads representing about 90 per cent of the mileage for that class of carriers, on that day moved 1,029,425 cars. The significance of this performance can be realized more readily when consideration is given to the fact that this represents approximately one-half of the total number of freight cars owned by the railroads of the United States. The best previous record was made on September 28, this year when 1,013,721 cars were handled.

In 1928, when except for this year, more traffic was carried by the railroads than ever before, even including the war years, the peak movement of both loaded and empty cars was 947,008 which was reached on October 28, that year. But even that record which stood until this year has been exceeded four times since August 29, 1921.

Bride Deserts Wounded Veteran Night of Wedding

By United Press.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 9.—Frank Dixon, wounded World War veteran, made a pathetic picture as he leaned on his crutches in a room crowded today and accused Mrs. Dorothy Dixon, his wife, of deserting him the same evening they were married.

Dixon was arrested on complaint of his wife, who claims he was annoying her. Dixon, however, said he was only trying to learn why she left him, and at the conclusion of the hearing the wounded veteran was turned over to Red Cross workers. Dixon's story to Judge DeWitt was as follows in part:

"The night we were married my wife laughed at me and told me I ought to go back to the hospital where I belonged. After she left she told people she married me for the excitement of the thing. I played fair with her and I think she should play fair with me."

Dixon said the marriage took place March 5 last. He told the judge he took part in several major battles and three days before the armistice was signed he was wounded 15 times and gassed.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

A New Quiet Game.

One Mother Says:

A quiet game that will hold a child's interest for a long time is playing "Circle Bean Bag."

With chalk, colored or white, mark on the kitchen floor three concentric circles, into which the child tries to throw the bean bags, perhaps five in all. The largest circle scores least (1 or 5, according to the age of the child and ability to add), the next size counts 2 (or 10), the smallest one, 3 (or 15).

My child amuses herself many afternoons by playing against her "other self." Her name is Betty Alice. She keeps one score for Betty and the next time for Alice, marking up scores on her blackboard with my help.

DRECO HELPS 76 YEAR OLD LADY

Stomach and Liver Troubles Disappear

GAINS FORTY POUNDS

Stomach and liver troubles are the foundation of most of the nation's sickness and these undermining troubles are avoidable. Both young and old men and women have found that Dreco gives normal health to the sufferer of stomach and liver trouble.

Mrs. Kate Grace of Leamont Furnace, near Conneltsville, Pa., well beyond the three score and ten mark and very well known in Conneltsville has suffered from stomach and liver troubles for several years. To think of food repulsed her. The inability of her liver to work properly poisoned her entire system, causing a general run-down condition.

"Stomach and liver trouble ravaged my system," says Mrs. Grace. "For three years I had suffered. I lost 62 pounds and became nothing but a shadow of my old self."

"After many treatments had failed to help me I started taking Dreco."

"After the first bottle I began to feel better and now I have taken three bottles of Dreco and feel fine and am almost back to my normal weight."

Dreco acts on the liver in a smooth manner, gradually working working off the excess bile day by day. It is neither strong nor harsh and does not excite the muscles of the bowels as strong cathartics do. It tones up the digestive organs and relieves gas on the stomach, puts an end to constipation, increases the appetite, gives strength to weak kidneys, restores tired nerves and induces sound sleep. Dreco is a great blood purifier and system cleanser.

SCOTSDALE, Nov. 9. — Burgess Walter Schaffer has issued a proclamation making Monday, November 12, a holiday in Scottdale. Most of the stores will be closed. The managers have placed cards in prominent places in their stores or in windows, in an effort to acquaint the public with the fact that they will be closed. It is thought that one of the largest crowds ever entertained by Scottdale will be here Monday. Arrangements are being completed for the parade and the unveiling of the doughboy monument at Broadway and Pittsburgh street. It is thought that the greater part of the crowd will stay over for the football game in the afternoon. Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will meet at the post rooms on Monday, November 12, at 3 o'clock to take part in the parade. All ex-service men not belonging to any other organization are invited to join the ranks of the veterans.

TRY THIS FOR LIVER and BOWELS

Is used by entire families because it is purely vegetable, does the work and costs very little.

Why pay high prices for Liver and Bowel remedies when none are better than Dr. Carter's K. and B. Tea, which is purely vegetable, can be brewed at home and a 30-cent package will last a long time? Thousands of old people will tell you they have been drinking it for years, and after the liver and bowels have been put in fine condition in a few days by a before bedtime cup, that only an occasional cup is afterwards necessary to keep one feeling fit and fine.

People who drink a cup of Dr. Carter's K. and B. Tea once in a while, seldom, if ever, have any bilious attacks, sick headache or swollen skin. It's good for boys and girls, especially those who are nervous and fretful. Druggists have been selling it for many years.—Advertisement.

Merchant Operators Make Heavy Cut in Production; Total Down to 181,840 Tons

Second Largest Reduction By This Interest in Past 10 Weeks.

MORE OR LESS HESITANCY

Has Been Displayed in Curtailment, Operators Disliking to Take Risks Against Possible or Sudden Revival in Demand; 50% More Ovens Out.

From The Weekly Courier
With another heavy cut, being one of nine during the past 10 weeks, the production of coke was brought down to a still lower level last week. Taking the bit in their teeth so to speak, the merchant operators slashed 11,300 tons off their total of the preceding week, which reduced the regional output to 181,840 tons which was but 17,500 tons in excess of the corresponding week of the strike recovery period of 1922.

The fairly even division in curtailment by the two producing interests was very much distorted last week, the loss at furnace ovens having been but 1,000 tons as contrasted with 11,300 tons at merchant plants. With the single exception of the week ending September 8 last, week's reduction in merchant output was the greatest since the process of paring began. Its progress, as applied by the two groups of operators, is shown in the following tabulation:

The foregoing shows that the need of the merchant operators to restrict production was greater than that of the furnace operators and that they have made consistent efforts to meet the emergency. That they could have met it more completely and earlier had they been more drastic in the application of their cutting down program seems apparent, in view of market developments but the desire to avoid any handicap in the event of a suddenly developing demand for coke has caused the merchants to proceed with caution. No operator fancies the disruption of his plant organization through a complete shutdown but always prefers to take some risks while hoping for a turn in the tide, rather than allow ovens to become cold and his force more or less disintegrated through even a brief idleness.

The further drop in merchant production was mainly the result of blowing out more plants and ovens. This measure was resorted to by several operators who until last week had been able to continue in blast in face of unsatisfactory market conditions. Contrasted with the preceding week when the furnace plants blew out 666 ovens and the merchants 173 the additions to the idle list, last week 893 ovens, were all at merchant plants and included the throwing of four important plants entirely idle.

The estimated production of coke during the week ended Saturday November 3, was 181,840 tons, divided between the two districts as follows: Connellsville, 109,420, a decrease of 1,390 tons, Lower Connellsville 75,420, a decrease of 11,090 tons, or a total decrease of 12,380 tons, as compared with a total decrease of 7,110 tons during the preceding week.

By interests the production was Furnace, 127,300, a loss of 1,000 tons, merchant, 54,540, a loss of 11,300 tons as contrasted with losses of 3,400 and 7,710 tons respectively during the week ended October 27.

The 558 ovens added to the idle list were all at merchant plants as follows: Griffin No. 1, 209; Isabella, 260; Low Phos, 60; Tower Hill No. 2, 328, all plants being put out of commission entirely.

Production by the two interests and the total compared with the corresponding week in 1922 is shown here with.

High School, With Own Band, Will March to Fayette Field Tomorrow; To Play Monessen

Great Student Body, Planning
Special Cheers, Will Be at Game.

LINE-UP NOT ANNOUNCED

Connellsville High School is all ready to "hop off" tomorrow afternoon in an attempt to soar to another victory. This time the opponent is Monessen High School and with two or three teams coming together at Fayette Field a great grid festival is certain.

The game is regarded as the biggest yet played on the local schedule. Special preparations for making it a memorable one have been going on for the past week under the direction of John E. Shott, a member of the High School faculty, and the cheerleaders. This movement has been strongly cooperated in by students of the school and interest is mounting to the fever heat.

The spirit has spread to the team, which has been a glowing example of school loyalty all season, and the boys have worked out regularly every evening in the mud and rain. The squad is prepared for any treatment the weather man has in store tomorrow.

Yesterday morning a cheer practice was held during the chapel exercises. A huge banner, with large black letters on an orange background, spelling out "Beat Monessen," hung over the stage in the auditorium. Yesterday students purchased tags bearing the words "Beat Monessen," which has become the slogan in the school. This evening, immediately after school, a final cheer practice will be held.

Tomorrow afternoon at 1:45 o'clock the students will mass at the High School building and march in a body to the grounds. The delegation will be headed by the school band, recently organized and which will make its first appearance tomorrow.

Connellsville feels it will win a victory but knows for a certainty it will be a struggle. The line-up of the players is something that can only be guessed at. Coach Larson plays no favorites and only what he considers the best get into the game. With all the boys battling on almost an even footing his task of selecting the starters is sometimes rather difficult. Everyone seems to be in good shape. The backfield men are nearly all over their injuries and on the line the second-string material is beginning to push the Varsity for jobs. "Red" Edmunds is now in excellent shape and ready to go into the game whenever he is permitted. The youngster probably would prove a sensation if allowed to get into the game. Whether he may be used tomorrow is not known. The lad has been practicing steadily for the past three or four weeks and has proven himself a powerful defender.

Last week Monessen handed Monongahela City the first losing the latter school has received this season and previously held the strong Washington outfit to an 18-0 score.

Tornadoes Play Sunday And Monday

The Connellsville Tornadoes have an ambitious program ahead of them. On Sunday the Ormsby A. A. of Pittsburg, one of the strongest aggregations in independent circles will be here for a game at the field outside the city. Recently Ormsby held the strong Brownsville eleven to one, touchdown and for that reason the Tornadoes are more than anxious to win decisively.

Then on Monday afternoon, in connection with the celebration of Armistice Day here the Tornadoes play again, meeting the Natrona Olympics. Natrona has a classy outfit and will give the purple and white eleven a real test. The game will be played at Fayette Field at 3 o'clock.

The Tornadoes, playing last week in the mud and rain are not fearing anything of the sort they may meet this week-end, but for the sake of scoring more than once on Ormsby, would welcome a dry field.

"Beat Monessen" read orange and black tags worn by High School students and in the heart of every gridder an echo "we will" seems to reply.

Ignorant on Inside Ball

This one sounds like an old moon-baked lie, but Bill Friel tells it for the truth:

One of those volunteer scouts approached Friel and began to tell him about a wonderful player he had seen in some country town near St. Louis, advising Bill to sign him for the Browns without delay.

Friel listened to all the good points of the phenom, and then asked:

"Does he know anything about inside baseball?"

The bonster, being candid and honest, replied: "No, I don't guess he does; they haven't got an enclosed park out there where he plays, but you can teach him the difference."

"Sparky" Gets Chance

"Sparky" Adams of the Chicago Cubs, who is making good as a substitute at short for Charlie Hollocher, fans who have watched "Sparky" work believe that he will develop into one of the best players in the National league.

Kansas City Proves Meal

Ticket for Other Teams

All attendance records in the American association were shattered this season by the Kansas City Blues. According to Thomas J. Hickey, president of the league, the Milwaukee club played to a total of 425,000 cash customers during its season's home appearances. This compares its 1933 mark of 300,000 by 125,000.

Kansas City has been the savior to several clubs this year. Milwaukee was paid more than any other team for its appearance in the Blue stronghold. The season's total landed Milwaukee by the Kaysee management was $17,000.

Although a powerful gate attraction at home, the Blues have not drawn large crowds on the road. For instance, at Toledo recently they played to 70 paid admissions. Their end of the receipts amounted to $14.70.

"Bubbles" Hargrave Is

Praised by John McGraw

"Bubbles" Hargrave, catcher for the National Nationals, is lauded by John McGraw, New York's manager, as one of the finest fielders and the surest in a pinch he has seen this year. He also praised Hargrave's growing ability. "Bubbles" usually gets the Giants tied to the bags when he plays against them.

Hewitt to Enter Army

"Tiny" Hewitt, former University of Pittsburgh fullback, will enter the United States Military academy this fall and it is dollars to peanuts he will make the team without much trouble.

He has lots of speed back of his 200 pounds and the Navy line is apt to be in for a tough afternoon when it encounters the Army at New York November 24.

GULBRANSEN

The Registering Piano

A Heaping Measure of Pleasure— with the Gulbransen

Picture a beautiful Gulbransen in your home, and you playing it!

Picture yourself playing, through the pedals, with the "touch" of a musician!

Picture the keys being pressed down, as in hand playing!

Pressed down, not knocked down. There's one of the secrets of Gulbransen superiority. It removes all suggestion of the mechanical and gives you real, intimate, personally-produced music, full of genuine expression.

Because the Gulbransen is a Registering Piano, registering your exact touch and expression—because it is different from any player-piano you have ever known—because it is so remarkably easy to pedal—your first delight will develop into continued, year-after-year interest.

You'll be a Gulbransen "fan"—you'll be enthusiastic, entertaining, and—mark this statement, proved by the experience of thousands of folks who have Gulbransens—you and your family will get more pleasure out of your Gulbransen than anything you now possess.

BEEHIVE COKE IS FEELING INROADS BY COMPETITOR

Conditions Make It Possible for By-Product Plants to Undersell.

CURTAIL OUTPUT EASILY

In commenting upon the heavy increasing in coke production by the beehive and by-product ovens, a specialist of the American Metal Market says:

Production of coke in the Connellsville and lower Connellsville region reports by the Connellsville Courier reached its maximum on the recent movement in the week ended April 21. A 30,000-ton tonnage of which 4,000 tons was by the beehive ovens and 26,000 tons by by-product ovens. The output of coke in the country is reported at 184,000 tons, 10 per cent in excess of the 167,000 tons for the same period last year.

The decrease from the top level is 30 per cent. The decrease in the rate of pig iron production in the country as a whole is about 20 per cent from its top level.

Thus the Connellsville coke region has lost much more than a regular proportion. There was a time when the case would be reversed. For decades Connellsville coke was considered the ideal material. Consumers bought it whenever they could get it. To the extent that there was not enough Connellsville coke to go around some furnaces had to buy other coke but when general demand lessened they returned to the Connellsville product. In that period Connellsville coke production fluctuated less than did the production of pig iron in the country at large.

The change in alignment is of course, chiefly to the advent of the by-product process. By-product ovens require a very large capital outlay and a much more economical operation. The yield is slightly greater, there is a large volume of gas, and there are other by-products. They make coke more cheaply, counting in cost and depreciation on investment while the loss from idleness is greater. Finally, it is difficult to get for them good coal. Every effort is made to maintain some kind of an operation as to keep the ovens warm.

Products can easily be carried around by the by-product coke plant but a part of the procedure is required when no coke can be done in this line.

The high price of Connellsville coke in the past has meant the peak load to many such coke when coke consumption is heavy through out the country, and very little when general consumption is relatively light. The region however holds its coal market in such times much better than its coke market for the by-product ovens use much Connellsville coal.

In 1921 steel interests having by-product ovens took considerable coke business from the Connellsville region.

They were able to undersell and still not lose, while in some instances they might have been willing to lose a trifle if necessary rather than let ovens grow cold. While the striking condition of 1921 may not be returning it is an event rather than an incident in the coke market that the Struthers Furnace Company has bought its coke supply November to March inclusive while normally it has used Connellsville coke. The Connellsville region was anxious to secure the contract but entirely unable to make the necessary price.

JOINT-EASE FOR Stiff, Swollen Joints

RHEUMATISM OR OTHERWISE

Says: "When Joint-Ease Gets In—Joint Aches Gets Out"

It was a high class pharmacist who saw prescription after prescription fail to help hundreds of his customers to get rid of rheumatic swellings and stiff, inflamed joints.

And it was this same man who asserted that a remedy could and would be compounded that would make really swollen, tormented joints work with just as much smoothness as they ever did.

Now this prescription, rightly named Joint-Ease, first after being tested successfully on many obstinate cases is offered through progressive pharmacists to the millions of people who suffer from ailing joints that need liberating up.

Swollen, twinging, inflamed, stiff, pain-tormented joints are usually caused by rheumatism but whatever the cause Joint-Ease soaks right in through skin and flesh and gets right on and corrects the trouble at its source.

Remember, Joint-Ease is for all kinds of the joints, whether it be the knee, hip, elbow, shoulder, spine or finger, and when you rub it on you may expect a quick and gratifying result.

It is now on sale at Connellsville Drug Co. and Union Drug Co. and druggists everywhere for 50 cents a tube. Advertisement.

Colors Being Used in Evening Frocks

Orchid With Yellow Chic Novelty Feature Now in Forefront.

We do not think of practical values when we select the evening wardrobe, observes a fashion writer. That is why, perhaps, modistes are relegating their tulle, satins and crepe to the corner of their shops and filling the windows with those elusive affairs which seem to be closely associations of ribbon, lace and the sincerest materials.

Flouffant effects add to this appearance. The opaque quality of ruffled material merely emphasizes the soft transparency of the single fold which forms the frock itself. We may combine our trimmings of ruffled ribbon, fluted lace, plaited self-material, or any of the numerous bits which designers have accomplished so cleverly this season. But we should keep in mind the fact that darkness has its widest appeal in evening frocks.

Embroidered figures on a silk background are to be found among the collection of pretty frocks for the younger girl. Unusual color combinations have been achieved. One of the novelty effects, which is finding considerable popularity just now, is the use of orchid with yellow.

The yellow is used in an underlay of fine georgette and lace, while the orchid is placed in slender panels over the yellow foundation.

Lace has not stepped from the limelight, as we might have thought earlier. It was used in such abundance on the frocks for afternoon wear that we scarcely expected to see its popularity increase in the days advanced. Perhaps because the time for dress became to the season, the vivid and unusual colorings in which the lace was offered gave the old its new lease on life.

However, we are finding it made up into the most attractive dance frocks. Almond green lace, with an apricot georgette underlay, proves a fascinating combination. Melon pink, touched artfully with rosettes of old blue chiffon or gray, lighted with the luster of silver, is being seen at the smart dances.

White stormed the sports world and was accepted. For the golf links, the country club or the shore we gave it first place. But we are rather surprised to see evidence of its popularity in the evening frocks when color is being used so widely.

An exquisite dance frock of white chiffon was the center of attraction in a room that fairly bloomed with the color effects of other gowns. Of particular simplicity were the lines of this white frock, showing infinite skirts of chiffon, each dropping its pointed hemline a little below the other.

Straight Lines, With
Flare From Knee Down

This type of gown is popular for afternoon wear. It is constructed of black satin, relieved by a touch of brilliantly colored embroidery.

Long Shoulder Lines
Displayed in New Furs

In the fur fashion of the winter is reflected the tendency to exploit the same long shoulder line so apparent in costumes of other materials. Even when such material is used and there is perhaps a cleverly used gold pin in front or at the side, or when the attached piece at the bottom of coat or wrap is unobtrusively circular, the effect is always of extreme slenderness, an effect accentuated by the close little helmet or cloche hat which has been carried over from the modes of summer and still remains well in the lead of millinery fashion.

A Neck Gazing.
A torn pocket hilt looks most untidy and can quite well be prevented in the following way: Sew a hook and eye at the very bottom of it on the wrong side then look it together and pinch the hook down tight. This keeps the pocket hilt quite neat, and it is almost impossible to tear it.

WAR DEPT. EMPLOYEE OFFERS STRONG PROOF

"The Tanlac treatment is good in the fullest sense of the word," is the cordial manner in which P. M. Hubbard, 315 Cameron St., Alexandria, Va., a clerk in the War Department, Washington, D. C., recently spoke of his experience with the medicine.

"For more than a year past I have suffered from a nervous, run-down condition. My digestive organs did not work right. I had little appetite and what I did eat failed to give me proper nourishment. My rest at night was broken, my nerves unstrung, I lost much energy and always felt more or less lapsed out."

"I bought Tanlac on the advice of a friend and can say that it fully met my needs in every way. I now feel stronger and better by far than I have in months. I eat well and sleep well, have gained up in weight and energy and feel renewed in every way."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

DENIES MOTHER WAS GERMAN SPY

Daughter of Mata-Hari Trying to Clear Her Name.

WAS KILLED BY FIRING SQUAD

Mata-Hari, the most notorious woman spy the world has ever known, is dead, shot six years ago by a firing squad of French Zouaves on dreary autumn days behind the walls of Vincennes prison.

The story of her capture, sensational trial and previous career of intrigue—a career with which kings, princes and prime ministers were linked, already has been told. The names of a French minister of war and the second highest minister in a French foreign ministry were mentioned, and it also was disclosed that Mata-Hari was the mistress of the German crown prince, who once took her with him to the military maneuvers in Silesia. One of her last loves was the Dutch premier, Van der Linden, who, after her conviction, made strenuous efforts to obtain a pardon for her from the French government.

Mata-Hari's story has been told, but now her daughter has come fresh from a Holland convent to attempt to clear her mother's name.

Seldom has a young girl made a more pathetic pilgrimage. She is in Paris searching the records, trying to establish her mother's innocence. The famous dancer, she asserts, died a martyr, willing to be known as a spy in order to shield her daughter, from a knowledge of her true manner of living.

Dancer's Diary

Mata-Hari was not a spy, her daughter says, but was a courtesan. And the daughter adds, she was accused falsely by a woman rival for the affections of a Frenchman high in the offices of the government.

"My mother was a far better woman than she was ever admitted to be," the girl says. "She was incapable of the infamies laid at her door. I have vowed on the cross, the symbol of my mother's faith, that I will not rest until I have cleared her name."

In the court-martial of the dancer it was charged that at one time she was in Spain conferring with a German agent. Actually, the girl maintains, she was in Holland, visiting her at a convent.

In startling contrast to the daughter's claims, however, is the dead dancer's diary, published after her execution. In this amazing document she told the story of her life and admitted having been an agent of the German secret service for many years. All Paris read the revelations with emotion, incited by the heart-scattering recollections of those dark days in 1917 when Mata-Hari's arrest coincided with the failure of the offensive in Champagne and the temporary collapse of the hopes placed in the power of the tanks to sweep the German hordes from their trenches.

The daughter says she cannot believe her mother wrote the diary, and if she did, it was simply further to hide her real manner of living.

Became a Buddhist Dancer

Mata-Hari was born in 1890 in Java, the daughter of a Dutch trader and a native woman. Her father died when she was a child and her mother fled with her to Burma and placed her in a Buddhist temple to save her from the fate of half-breed girls in the Orient. There, while a dancer of the temple, Captain McLeod of the British army, a baronet, saw her at a Buddhist festival and fell in love with her. She escaped from the temple, married the baronet, and bore him three children. One of these was possessed by her, gardener at the behest of an ayah whom she had beaten in a fit of anger. Mata-Hari shot the gardener with a revolver. Then she took one of the remaining children, fled to Marseilles and thence to Holland, where she placed the little daughter in a convent.

Going to Paris, she went on the stage as a dancer. A German diplomat became infatuated with her, and her career of intrigue began, which finally ended with her arrest as a spy. Mata-Hari was confident of acquittal to the end. On the day the court-martial's verdict was to be rendered, she made herself up as for the stage. She had never looked so stunning and she used all her seductive wiles to conquer the young officers upon whom her fate depended.

Proud in Shadow of Death

Where, after the clicking of heels and the clatter of arms in obedience to the sharp command, "present arms," the death sentence was read, she remained her proud composure, although her face turned ashen white.

"Ah, gentlemen, you are ungentlemanly," was her sole comment, and then, "I have loved too well."

Mata-Hari was removed to the women's prison of St. Lazare. At first the dancing girl refused all the attention of the nuns who directed the prison, but toward the end she became more gentle, and one of the last scenes of a tragic life was the gathering of the nuns in prayer around the abandoned charmer who had had many of the mighty in Europe at her feet.

The day before her death, Mata-Hari, for the first time, appeared noticeably sad and the kindly sisters consoled her with her and urged her to dance so as to throw off her sadness. And Mata-Hari danced her last dance, her dance of death, in a prison cell to an audience of nuns.

Face's Firing Squad

On the morning of her execution, at Vincennes prison, she was dressed in her loveliest gown, its brilliant colors standing out in gay contrast to the somber sky and the still more somber prison walls. She was placed before a small mound and the firing squad came forward.

An officer dropped his sword arm; there was a rattle of musketry fire and she slowly crumpled to the ground. A red stain appeared on the bosom of the dress.

She died Mata-Hari, the spy.

HAS RICH COPPER DISTRICT

Seven Devils District of Idaho Has Great Possibilities.
Possibility of development of the Seven Devils district of west central Idaho into one of the richest copper-bearing regions of the West is seen by Dr. E. S. Laney, geologist of the United States geological survey and head of the geology department of the University of Idaho.

Doctor Laney is incorporating in a publication soon to be issued the results of recent surveys conducted in the Seven Devils district by the geological survey and the Idaho state bureau of mines.

The region comprising the Seven Devils district is of the same formation as that which extends into Oregon, Doctor Laney believes. The Oregon field, with the assistance of railroad transportation, is being made to yield good returns, principally of copper ore, he said.

NO PROTECTION FROM FLEAS

British Parliament Refuses to Aid Reforming Fleas.

Performing fleas on the English stage—in fact, all fleas whose lives are consecrated to the drama—must go through their acts without the possibility of protection in the case of maltreatment.

This slight to fleas is contained in an antifea clause of the government's new performing animals bill which has passed the committee stage in the house of commons.

When the question was debated, it was decided reptiles and fish should be included, but fleas must fight their battle alone. An amendment was carried to this effect.

The real reason for the discrimination was that of the difficulty of using the flea as evidence.

OLD BILL WILL BE PAID

Savings Left Twelve Years Ago Will Go to Landlady.

A board bill 12 years old will be collected by Mrs. D. R. Holmes of Cedar Rapids, as the result of a recent ruling in the superior court at Spokane, Wash. Over a decade ago, Joe Ann, a boarder, left owing Mrs. Holmes a bill of $100, but presented her with a bank book showing $344 deposited in a local bank. She said he told her that if he failed to return it was hers.

The court ruled that Mrs. Holmes must advertise for the owner before the money could be paid her and held that she can collect only the amount due. In case no trace of Ann or his relatives is found, the state will ask for any balance that may be left, after the property is administered.

At the Theatres

The Paramount

"RIDERS AT NIGHT"—Starring Big Boy Williams, is the feature attraction today and tomorrow at this theatre.

One of the most remarkable scenes ever witnessed in the annals of photography production occurred in the making of a recent western picture when a wild horse called Devilshot, by the cowboys who had tried to capture him, suddenly reared up and attacked the bad man who was trying to kidnap the heroine.

Everything was progressing smoothly when the horse, which had taken a violent dislike to the villain, suddenly reared up on its haunches and attacked the villain with its fore feet with such fury that the villain was nearly killed.

The critical situation which almost developed into a real tragedy was met by Big Boy Williams who lassoed the horse in the nick of time and saved the man from being trampled to death.

This is only one of the many thrilling scenes that occur in "Riders At Night," a different western photoplay.

The Soisson

"A MAN OF ACTION"—With Douglas MacLean, supported by an all star cast, in the leading role is one of the best attractions now at this theatre in many months. The picture will also be shown tomorrow.

Bruce MacAllister has inherited a fortune in diamond mines and several well-trained family servants with the result that he is losing all initiative when his fiancée, Helen Sumner, tells him into realizing his predicament.

When Eugene Preston, administrator of the MacAllister estate, who is planning to steal a half million dollar shipment of diamonds, suggests to Bruce that he go east for a special meeting, Bruce apparently falls in with the plan, arranging to have another chap make the trip with Helen's father.

Inconspicuously, Bruce visits the underworld of San Francisco, falling in with the crooks whom Preston has hired for the diamond robbery. They mistake him for a master crook, "The Chicago Kid," and blackmail him into joining them. When Bruce regains consciousness, he is in his own home. He convinces Preston that he really is the "Chicago Kid" and gets possession of the diamonds which disappear again mysteriously. Preston keeps the entire gang locked up in the MacAllister place for 24 hours, the diamonds disappear and disappearing in most mysterious fashion.

Helen Sumner, seeing a light in the house, brings in the police. She fails to recognize Bruce and he is going to fall when Dr. Sumner, accompanied by telegram, straightens out the tangled diamond that turns out to be the real "Chicago Kid" and Helen joyfully acknowledges that Bruce has now become "A Man of Action."

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, "Warren Kerrigan" will be seen in "The Girl of the Golden West."

The Orpheum

"PEG O' MY HEART"—J. Hartley Mansons' famous stage success, in which Laurette Taylor makes her screen debut in the role which has endeared her to hundreds of thousands of theatregoers, provides entertainment today and tomorrow.

It's a tale of an Irish father and an English mother, of the Chichesters and Kingsworths, and Sir Gerald Adair, Peg's legal guardian; and of the circumlocutions, amusing as well as heart-stirring, that attend the young girl who leaves the little Irish farmhouse where she was born and ventures among strangers to whom good form is the cardinal requirement.

As in the stage play, Miss Taylor has the assistance of Michael, the famous canine actress with the masculine name. Michael has been with Miss Taylor in all her performances of Peg.

The screen production of "Peg O' My Heart" was directed by King Vidor. Miss Taylor's brilliant supporting cast includes such capable and popular players as Mahlon Hamilton, Russell Simpson, Ethel Grey Terry, Nigel Barrie, Lionel Belmore, Vera Lewis, Sidna Beth Levin, D. R. D. Hartwell, Allen O'Malley and Fred Huntley.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, Thomas Meighan and Lila Lee will appear in "Woman-Proof."

QUART OF WATER CLEANS KIDNEYS

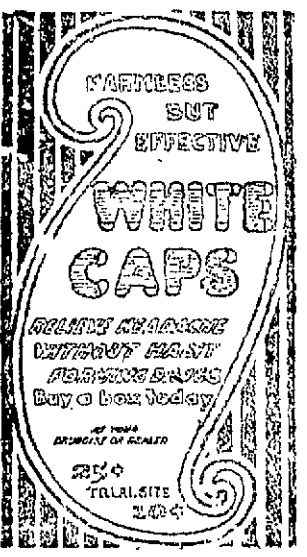

Take a Little Salt. If Your Back Hurts, or Bladder Is Troubling You.

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick, rheumatism, headache, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, indigestion and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of stinging, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also for about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications. If you want have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year. Advertisement.

She didn't feel at all sure she liked the taste of Joe. She found his real-life moments unpleasantly acid; his custom, native; and his prudery—for she'd been aware that she'd sometimes shocked him—ridiculous. She admitted the attractiveness of his looks, his surprisingly good speech, his vigor and freshness, and the queer miscellany that formed his background: the jungle, and the muskrat-comely stage; that he bought pictures, and had never been to Europe, and knew Sorrell. This was how her palate reported it: about as a boy's palate reports its first taste of strong drink. She didn't reckon on anything in her, behind her palate and capable of overruling its report, being concerned in the matter. But, even on that first morning, she'd been forced to ignore as irrelevant some rather queer sensations and impulses which had.

It annoyed her to learn that Joe was a married man with a grown daughter; she lost her temper with John, who told her about it. "He's probably got five or six wives," she rapped out. "One in every port, like a sailor."

She would barely listen to John's detailed explanation that Greer's matrimonial difficulties were, comparatively speaking, respectable, and it did not in the least please her when she heard, "Respectable!" she fumed. "That's the heaviest second-rate vulgarity of it. Why do you think they have to marry those people?"

When she heard about Beatrice, and Joe's wish to enter her in a spirit school, preferably Thornycroft, where Dorothy was, she fully belied over. What all it was it of his, or his daughter's, where Dodo went to school? How did he even know of the school? Unless John had been building about it? But of course John had been! Given the man all the details, no doubt; Miss Dodo's address, himself as a reference, everything!

"What's the harm if I did?" he asked. "He couldn't get her into that school in a hundred years—not in ten, anyway. And next year's all that matters to us." It wasn't this argument

"I met her last night," Margaret said. "We had dinner there, Henry and I. She happens to look like him, in the first place. He had a photograph of her before she came; you could even tell from that—so, if you want a story," she went on, after a breathless pause, "you'd better make it that she's illegitimate. It isn't likely that she brought her mother's marriage certificate with her."

To Violet the purport of this was as plain as it was astonishing. If Margaret had said, in so many words, "I think of marrying this man, I've made a start toward getting him. So, if you want to play fair, you'll let him alone"—she couldn't have made it clearer. As a decent, married, middle-aged member of society Violet had to acknowledge the reasonableness of this request in some moods she even recorded a tentative half approval of the plan. If Joe was in the way to make a serious fortune out of this linen process that looked so good to John, he'd be a pretty good matrimonial risk—as good as Margaret would ever get a chance to take.

Violet wanted her married. She was still a social asset, for a difficult dinner or a week-end party; but ten years from now—little lighter dress, her hair cut shorter, her eyes more refreshingly astute, one wouldn't know what to do with her. In such a marriage, Margaret, faithful as she was, would, of course, loathe the man himself. Her first unguarded comment upon him had really been funny. It wasn't likely the instant of a lifetime could have changed enough in two or three months to make him seem personally desirable. It was that prospective fortune Margaret was banking on, a line of reasoning which justified Violet, the first chance she got, in putting the matter before John.

Her opening startled him, for she began by asking if the linen business was really a frightfully good thing, and he jumped to the surmise that Joe was trying to unload his stock, on some of her friends. It took a minute or two to get him back on the rails.

"It's him I want to know about," she insisted. "Whether he's going to get rich, or whether he's not. Because Margaret means to marry him."

Again it took her a few minutes to get him calmed to the listening-point. Margaret wasn't doing with him this afternoon; she wasn't even engaged to him. "I didn't say she was going to marry him; I said she meant to, when the time came. It's a plan of hers, that's all. Only I thought you might as well know."

Lie down, he swung the other way and treated the idea jocularly, as an order of her numerous queer'nesses. "How did you find out about it? Did she tell you herself?"

"Practically," Violet asserted, and went on with confirmatory details. Margaret had been seeing quite a lot of him; she'd known about his daughter before any of the rest of them; before the girl came on at all; had seen a photograph of her; they'd dined there again last night, she and Henry,

Vigorous Old Age

With separate youth and old age with a deep and ever-widening abyss? The bloom of youth and the hardy, rugged glow of Old Age—sixteen and sixty—should be separated only by the span of years and not by varying differences of physical wholesome-ness.

Vigorous old age is within the grasp of all. S. S. S. builds that hale and hearty feeling back with a rush. Rich red blood is the greatest enemy of weakness, health, understanding. Old Age, S. S. S. builds that hale and hearty feeling back with a rush. Rich red blood is the greatest enemy of weakness, health, understanding. Old Age, S. S. S. builds that hale and hearty feeling back with a rush. Rich red blood is the greatest enemy of weakness, health, understanding.

and remarked dryly, "And he won't go on being an adventurer, if this linen business makes him rich—really rich, I mean."

"Well, if that's what she's counting on," he grumbled, "she'll want a while. It also takes my advice she will."

"Why?" Violet demanded. "Don't you think it's a good thing?"

"Of course I do. Wouldn't have put money into it if I didn't. But that doesn't mean necessarily that he'll get rich over it."

He went on, in response to a rather startled look she shot him, to explain. "He didn't mean anything sinister by that. Only, with a fellow like Greer, you never could tell. He might fly off the handle any time. He's left the sort that naturally gets rich. Sooner or later he's likely to bite off more than he can chew. Of course, if she did marry him—" He relapsed into an abstracted silence and took two or three drafts on his cigar. "She won't, though, I don't believe," he concluded.

He hadn't taken the idea as hard as he might have been expected to, for the amount had time for Margaret, all these years, had made him a bit romantic about her, and he liked having her around, just as she was; at home in his house, on call. He might have vetoed the thing summarily, and ordered it broken up; given his wife carte blanche to see that it went no further. Distinctly, he hadn't done that. Margaret had better go slow—this was all his advice came to; and she'd have to do that, anyhow. Even if the man were divorced today, she couldn't marry him, legally, here in Illinois, for another year. And any number of things could happen in that time. The thing he'd said and that had given Violet most food for thought was that broken sentence, "Of course, if he married Margaret—" Had he meant that this would bring Joe, somehow, within the pale? Afford him the protection of another code, so that he'd be allowed to get rich, after all?

Anyhow, the thing for Violet to do for the next few months—was to let Joe Greer alone. If she as much as looked at him, let alone lifted a finger, Margaret would attribute the probable failure of her project (for what serious attraction could a cold, finely person like Margaret effectively exert upon this genial freeloader?) to her, and, judging by the latest sample of her conduct, not most unreasonably about it. Luckily, it mattered very little to Violet herself; she'd have nothing to do with Joe—for the present, anyhow.
